Song of the Sword.

Sword! which sleepeth in thy sheath,
Hear'st thou not the trumpet's breath,
Where the column deep with death,
Tarries for thy crest?
Know'st thou not this lot is thine,
Glistening in the sun to shine,
Foremost 'mid the forming line?
Wane thee from thy rest!

Sword! that doth in darkness lie,
Girded fast unto my thigh,
See'st thou not 'gainst yonder sky
Banners sweeping low?
Never thus may'st thou remain,
Yield thee to my hand again,
For the tear of crimson stain
Down thy cheek must flow.

Sword! when first thy glittering light
Flashed athwart my youthful sight,
Playfully I called thee bright
As an angel's form.
Years have passed, nor yet we part,
Thou art wedded to my heart,
Though I often feel thou art
Dreadful as a storm.

TRAVELING STONES.—They have "walking leaves" in Australia, and, as we are now informed, they have "traveling stones" in Nevada. Mr. Hart, from Pahranagat, Nevada, has shown the editor of the Territorial Enterprise several curious pebbles—not curious in appearance, but rather curious in action. They were almost perfectly round, the majority of them nearly as large as a walnut, and of an irony nature. When distributed about upon a floor, or table, or other level surface, within two or three feet of each other, they immediately began traveling toward a common center and there huddled up in a bunch like a lot of eggs in a nest. A single stone, removed to the distance of three and a half feet, upon being released at once started off with wonderful and somewhat comical celerity to rejoin its fellows; taken away four or five feet it remains motionless. Mr. Hart says they are found in a region of country that, although comparatively level, is nothing but bare rock. Scattered over this barren region are little basins, from a few feet to a rod or two in diameter, and it is in the bottom of these that the rolling stones are found. They are from the size of a pea to five and six inches in diameter. The cause of these stones rolling together is doubtless to be found in the material of which they are composed, which appears to be loadstone or magnetic iron ore.

RATHER SPICY.—A lady, being invited to send a toast to be read at the anniversary celebration of the Pilgrim Fathers, furnished the following. It is spicy enough to flavor half a dozen anniversary dinners:

The "Pilgrim Fathers," forsooth! What had they to endure in comparison to the Pilgrim Mothers? It is true that they had hunger and cold, and sickness, and danger—foes within and without—but they had not only these to endure, but they had the Pilgrim Fathers, also! and yet their names are never mentioned. Who ever heard of the Pilgrim Mothers? Who ever gave a dinner in honor of them? Who ever writes songs, drinks toasts, and makes speeches in recollection of them? This self-sufficiency of the men is beyond endurance. One would actually suppose that New England had been colonized by men, and posterity provided for by special Providence.

THE Chicago Republican gives male fashion reports. Among them we find a "very pretty morning suit:" "Hat a la Pompadour, of tan-colored silk; a loose frock coat, fastened below a low collar, with a button solitaire; waist slightly adjusted; a moderately tight sleeve, with a cuff; single-breasted vest, buttoned high, with small standing collar, both bound with galloon; very tight pants, with wide stripe down the side. This suit is of lavender gray oheviette, percale collar, safety guard necktie, with quizzing-glass attached, which is quite a novelty—Laporte gloves, hawthorne cane and medallion handkerchief. This is an exceedingly stylish suit for traveling or morning promenade, and suitable for either an active or listless style of beauty."

SINGING, no doubt, oils the wheels of care, and supplies the place of sunshine. A man who sings has a good heart under his shirt-front. Such a man not only works more willingly, but he works more constantly. A singing cobbler will earn as much money again as a cordwainer that will give way to low spirits and indigestion. Avaricious men never sing. The man who attacks singing throws a stone at the head of hilarity, and would, if he could, rob June of its roses and August of its fruits. Singing promotes health, strengthens the voice, the organs of the throat and lungs, and prevents or cures consumption. Singing is an excellent agent for promoting mental hygiene.

REAL LOVE.—Sir Robert Barclay, who commanded the British squadron on Lake Erie, was horribly mutilated by the wounds he received while in action, having lost his right arm and one of his legs. Previously to his leaving England he was engaged to a young lady to whom he was greatly attached. Feeling acutely on his return, that he was a mere wreck, he sent a friend to the lady, informing her of his bereaved condition, and generously offering to release her from her engagement. "Tell him," replied the noble girl, "that I will joyfully marry him if he has only body enough to contain his soul."

TOO SHARP FOR HIM.—A city fop being in a country tavern, boasted of his cash, and agreed to drop money in a hat with any one present; the man who held out the longest to have the whole and treat the company, which was rather large. A farmer accepting the challenge, the fop dropped a five-dollar greenback in the hat, and the farmer followed with a ten cent shinplaster. "Go on," said the fop. "I won't," said the farmer; "you take the whole and treat the company."

LITTLE do the rich and great think that perhaps with every thread of the gay habiliments which they wear, is interwoven the sigh of a human soul; and that in the delicacies which surround them, are spent the life's energies and the vitality of exhausted frames, which have nerves that feel and suffer.

AN old lady who drives her wagon from the country into Fulton market, New York, and drives a hard bargain when she gets there, has a bank account of $50,000.

A Convict and his Daughter.

A terrible murder had been committed, and the Hotel de Barren, situated on the Rue Saint Saviour, in Paris, was in a terrible ferment. A thousand reports were in circulation, but they all differed very materially. Some declared that during the night a dozen savage-looking men entered the hotel, armed to the teeth, had bound the servants, and then committed the deed of blood. And yet the domestics were all free. Others said that a single robber had done the work, but as nothing valuable was missing, the lie was given to this assertion. Still others affirmed that a band of immortals had made the visit upon some mission of vengeance and taken a soul away with them, leaving only an inanimate body behind.

But there was one among the number who gave an account with some degree of calmness. He said that early in the evening he had seen a strange but beautiful looking woman, evidently belonging to the poorer classes, enter the hotel, and although he had kept a close and constant watch, he had not seen her come forth again. Once he thought he had seen her form flit by the window of the apartment where the murder had been committed. But this information was very indefinite, for the woman could not be found—neither had any one else observed such a character. All that was positively known was that Jerome Desmolines had been stabbed in his bed, and was now a cold and bloody corpse.

Later in the day it was announced that an arrest had been made by the police. Some time before a man by the name of Jean De Rodna had been arrested by the officers of justice at the instigation of the Desmolines family. He had been found concealed in the hotel under suspicious circumstances, and he was convicted of an attempt at robbery, and sentenced to the galleys. But he had escaped, and was known to have breathed dire vengeance against his persecutors. The night of the murder he had been seen near the hotel, and now that he was arrested his conviction and death were beyond question.

The trial came, and De Rodna was condemned to be guillotined.

A young girl had watched the progress of the trial, with a pale and anxious face. When the death penalty was proclaimed, she left the Court with a faltering step, and proceeded to an obscure apartment in an obscure street. Here she sat until darkness came on, but she was busily engaged during all this time. She was weaving a silken cord of considerable length, but quite small; yet of sufficient strength to sustain, suspended in the air, the weight of an ordinary-sized person. About every twelve inches the rope was knotted, which would prove a great advantage to any person wishing to ascend or descend it, in climbing by its aid, up or down a high wall.

As darkness came on the young girl entered the street, having concealed the cord about her person, and then walked rapidly until she reached the Rue St. Saviour. She entered a dwelling without even knocking, but as she was ascending the stairs she was met by an old woman, who asked:

"Does he come here to-night, Matilda?"

"I expect," was the brief reply.

"I thought that affair ended matters between you."

"It may be so; but I will wait."

"Very well."

The old woman continued her descent, while the girl passed on upwards. She did not stop upon the third or even the fourth floor, but passed on through the scuttle to the roof. Then she crept cautiously forward until she came to the last building in that row of houses.

She approached the very eaves, having first affixed her silken cord around a chimney, and clinging to it to prevent it from falling. For two hours she remained in this position, and by this time the street was dark and silent below. She could see that a light was burning in one of the rooms of the third story, and upon the window of this apartment her gaze was fixed.

Presently she began her descent on the cord. It was a fearful situation, for there she hung upon that giddy hight sustained only by that which appeared to be a single thread. If that should break, she must be dashed to pieces upon the pavement below.

Carefully the girl crept down the rope, and at length she placed her feet upon the window edge. It was a Summer night and the window was open. She gazed in and saw a young man seated at an easy-chair, puffing his cigar at his ease. He had not discovered her, as his back was toward the window, and not the smallest sound had attracted his attention. In a moment after, the girl was standing by his side, and leaping to his feet, he exclaimed:

"Matilda De Rodna! You here?"

"Yes, I am here," she replied, with a frown.

"How did you enter my apartment? I am sure I locked the door when I came in. Yes," he continued, for he ascertained by trying that he had done so.

"Perhaps I came in before you entered."

"Ah, I suppose so. But what do you want?"

"I want to talk with you, Henri Desmolines."

"Very well; be seated, and let me hear what you have to say."

She took a proffered chair, and fixing her eyes upon him, said:

"Henri Desmolines, when I met you three years ago, I was an innocent and happy girl. I believed all the world to be good and truthful. When you came to me, you represented yourself to be a poor artist. I received you. Had I known that you were one of the rich and proud men of the city, I should have refused to receive your addresses, because my father was only a tradesman, and the wealthy never stoop to wed the daughters of such. But, as a poor man, I loved you, and I firmly believed you intended to make me your wife. Innocent and confiding, you deceived me ere the echo of your promises had died away; you forsook me, and then I learned all. I did not reproach you, but, on the contrary, I endeavored to shield you with all my heart. I tried to keep my father in ignorance of the fact of my betrayal. But he learned it from another. Then I begged him not to injure you. He promised me that he would not, but he was determined upon seeing you. He called at your hotel, but you denied him admittance to your presence, and ordered your servants to thrust him into the street, which they did. But bent upon his purpose, he returned again, and you caused his arrest. Your menials swore falsely at your instigation, and I became the ruined daughter of a convict. You thought by this step you could be rid of him—myself you did not fear."

"You have sung all this in my ears before," was the heartless response.

"I will soon sing you a new song."

"Well, go on, and hasten the conclusion."

"My father is to die to-morrow."

"He deserves his fate, for he murdered my brother, Jerome."

"He did."

"You confess it, then?"

"I do. He escaped from the galleys almost a maniac. Smarting under the double wrongs which had been inflicted upon him, is it a wonder that he should seek for revenge?"

"But why did he kill my brother?"

"It was through mistake. The blow was intended for you, Henri Desmolines."

"Well, are you through with what you have to say?"

"No. I want you to save my father's life. You can and must do it."

"You may retire now," replied Henri, as he arose and pointed to the door. The girl sprang to her feet, and her eyes glittered as she exclaimed:

"Henri Desmolines, listen to my words and heed them well, for as I speak so I will act—so I can accomplish. I have never thought of shedding blood. But I shall watch to-morrow, and if my father dies, I will return to you, and I will stab you to the heart even as he did unto your brother. Before my God I have sworn to do this."

"Oh, you threaten, do you? I think to-morrow will find you in a prison cell. Not that I fear you, for you will not be likely to reach my room again without discovery. But I will punish you for your threat." He stepped towards the bell-pull, and even while his back was turned, Matilda passed out the window, ascended her slender cord and was again upon the roof. She saw her former lover thrust his head out, and look down toward the ground. She then heard him say:

"She could not have escaped, except by this window. If she has fallen, she certainly has been dashed to pieces, and so I shall be rid of her forever."

Oh, how those cruel words rankled in that poor girl's heart, as all that long and dreary night she sat in her lonely room. Each passing hour she counted, as proclaimed by a distant clock, until the morning came. Then the hour for the execution arrived, and soon she knew that she was fatherless—the guillotine had done his horrible work.

The night came on again, and it was beautifully brilliant. It was one fitted rather for love than for vengeance, but still the girl did not hesitate, for the oath had been taken, and must be kept.

Again she entered the same dwelling, where a hundred times she had met her lover, and ascended to the roof. Again she stood upon that of the Hotel de Ravion, and affixed her cord. She looked down towards the window, and she saw lazy wreaths of smoke rolling out. She believed that Henri was seated there with his cigar, and soon she knew this was the case, for she heard him singing a lively air.

Presently his head appeared in view. He gazed around in every direction, and then felt downward with his hands, as if searching for something. After this he disappeared.

Quickly did Matilda slide down her cord. She gazed into the apartment, and she saw Henri examine every corner where a human being could possibly be concealed. Then he locked and bolted the door and retired to his couch. The avenger watched him until she thought that he was sleeping, and then she entered and approached his side. She took up his revolver, which was laying upon the table, and cocked it for use. The click of the hammer aroused him, and starting up he said:

"Here again! My God how did you enter?"

The only reply was the leveling of the weapon at his head. He yelled for help, but with the sound of his voice came the pistol's report, and the betrayer fell back dead. In a moment after, the avenger reached the roof, and returned from thence to her home.

Of course, there was another terrible excitement at the hotel, but this time the affair remained shrouded in mystery. Six months after, a poor creature died in a lonely attic, of a broken heart. Her name was Matilda De Rodna, and, dying, she gave to a friend the secret of her revenge, which until that moment had remained unexplained.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY MANN, of Philadelphia, has stirred up a newspaporial hornet's nest in that city by stating, in a recent address to the Court, that the newspapers were becoming too strong—stronger even than the law, and must be put down.

THE following epitaph may be seen in the cemetery of a parish in the environs of Paris: "Here lies Madam N——, wife of M. N——, master blacksmith. The railing around this tomb was manufactured by her husband."

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

SATURDAY, : : : : : JUNE 20, 1868.

CHINESE OUTRAGE.—An outrage occurred in San Francisco on last Sunday night, which illustrates the character of the Chinese in our midst. A Chinaman who had been for some time employed in an American business house, becoming indifferent to the arbitrary customs of his own country, thought proper to cut off his queue and dress himself in a suit of American clothes. For this offense against the despotic notions of his countrymen, he was kidnapped from the house of his employer and taken into a cellar in the Chinese part of town and there set upon by three Chinamen, who had been detailed by their brutal brothers for the purpose, and beaten nearly to death with clubs and pieces of rope. He was rescued by the police who, by some means received an intimation of the affair and made their appearance just in time to save him from a horrible death. The outrage was witnessed by a crowd of Chinese, whose sanction of the deed serves to show to what extent their brutal instincts will lead them in the depths of infamy. The vast number of these degraded, immoral, Idol-worshipping, imperfect shapes of humanity daily crowding upon the wharves of our cities and swarming in the interior, are just so many plague spots in the pathway of civilization; and unless the tide is checked by some means, the future prosperity of the State will suffer by its corrupting influences.

CHINESE TESTIMONY.—The San Francisco Times, commenting on the dark deeds perpetrated among the squalid cellars in which the Chinese congregate in that city, says:

Even when gashed and mangled victims tell a tale of outrage too plain to be confuted, the terror of the future seals the lips of the sufferer, and the lack of all moral obligations renders futile any attempts to extract the truth from witnesses who speak the truth only when authorized to do so by their superiors.

This, we think, is rather a frank admission for the leading organ of the Radical party, especially so, when it is remembered what a howl that party set up last winter against everybody who doubted the propriety of allowing Chinese to testify in the courts against white men. It was a distinguished Radical leader who said last fall that he would not lay a straw in the way of Chinese suffrage. But the Times is coming to its senses and, in its present mood, at least, seems prepared to abandon the absurd idea of offering further inducements to the wretched Mongols to commit crime by granting them the right to testify against white men, or endowing them with political power in a Government of which they know as little as the wooden gods they worship.

SPECIAL ORDER.—A special military order, prohibiting the use of guns belonging to the National Guard, for the purpose of firing salutes for political parties, has been made and published by Adjutant-General James M. Allen. This is a good move, and one that will be sanctioned by well-meaning men of all parties. If a similar, impartial order had been issued from the same department when controlled by Republican officials, they might have saved themselves from merited censure and received credit for the same magnanimity that is now due to a Democratic Adjutant-General, who has proven himself worthy of the position, and justly entitled to the confidence of the people.

NEW VOLUME.—The San Francisco Examiner has entered upon the fourth year of its existence. Having risen, during the reign of terror, from the ashes of its predecessor, destroyed by a lawless mob, the Examiner has fearlessly maintained the true principles of Democracy. It is ably conducted, and is justly entitled to its present position in the front rank of the most useful journals on the Pacific coast.

OREGON WIT.—A Democratic paper in Oregon recently complimented a contemporary thus: "We prize the Signal as among the best of our exchanges." Thereupon McDonald, of the Salem Unionist, remarks: "That reminds us of the story of the buzzard complimenting the skunk upon the delicate flavor of its breath."—[Exchange.

If McDonald is the skunk referred to, the buzzard is a fool.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY.—We are indebted to the Librarian for a copy of the fifteenth Annual Report of the President, Treasurer, and Librarian of the Mercantile Library Association. The report speaks well for the good management and prosperity of the organization.

NEW VOLUME.—The Solano Press having entered upon its seventh volume presents its usual neat appearance, and vigorously advocates its political tenets in a manner worthy of a better cause than Radicalism.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.—A terrible case of the spontaneous combustion of a drunkard is reported in Cleveland, Ohio. A couple of reeling topers in Woodland should take warning.

ENLARGED.—The Solano Herald has been recently enlarged, furnished with new type and otherwise improved. It is a good paper barring its politics.

EXTINGUISHER.—A patent fire extinguisher has recently been on trial in Santa Cruz, and is highly commended by a committee appointed to test it.

THE Agricultural Society of Santa Clara will hold its Fair of 1868, commencing on Monday, September 28th, and to continue five days.

INSANE.—Wm. Salloway on old citizen of Yreka, has become deranged through the influence of spiritualism.

Unity of Action.

The time approaches near at hand for the meeting of the National Democratic Convention, and never before, in view of such an assemblage, has it been more necessary for the exercise of wisdom in the patriotic duty which the representatives of the people there assembled will be called upon to perform. Personal preference and prejudice for or against this or that man who has been named for the high position of President, must be laid aside, and with the same unselfish spirit of devotion to the whole country, which inspired the signers of the Declaration of Independence, the delegates should, with one accord, determine to pursue a course best calculated to advance the interests of a common cause and promote the welfare of the nation. While it is but natural that the people in different sections have a desire to place in the field their own favorites as candidates for the Presidency, there should exist in the minds of all true Democrats a firm determination to unite in enthusiastic support of the nominee of the Convention, whoever he may be. The dangerous tendency of Radical despotism has already been fully realized. A continuation of power in the hands of the party now holding the reins of Government would be attended with the most evil consequences, and the only way the country can be rescued from the peril which besets it is by the earnest, determined, and united action of the Democracy, all over the land. No matter then who may be chosen from the ranks of all the distinguished men who have been brought forward as candidates before the Convention. Each of them deservedly command the respect and confidence of the country, and whether the choice falls on Pendleton, Seymour, Haight, or some one else whom the Convention, in its wisdom, may deem the most appropriate standard bearer of Democracy, let all who are animated by patriotic motives, in a common cause for the best good of the country, act harmoniously and with a fixed purpose to overthrow the lawless conspiracy which threatens the hopeless destruction of all principles of good Government. With such a unity of interest and purpose, there can be no doubt of the result to follow the Presidential election.

PROSPERITY.—Never before in the history of California since the discovery of gold by John Marshall, has the land been favored with a more prosperous season than that with which the Giver of all Good is now blessing a grateful people. The buoyant spirit of those who represent every branch of industry, the cheerful tone of the press as well as the actual, real evidences of the bounties of nature, existing on every hand, point unmistakably to the future wealth and prosperity of the State. On this subject the Capital Reporter makes the following remarks:

From every section of the State we have the same pleasing intelligence of lively business, rapid increase of population, and bright and healthy prospects. The long neglected ranches of the southern portion of the State are attracting the attention of capitalists who are dividing them up into farms of convenient size and settling them with those who will cultivate the soil. This is giving new life to that section, which had seemed to have lain down in a Rip Van Winkle sleep; but it is now fully awake, and is marching on to prosperity. The large crops of wheat and other farm products of the great valleys, have proven their capacity, and in them settlements are rapidly extending, and other valleys are sought for. The cities and villages throughout the agricultural portion of the State are filled with people, and new buildings, for sale and rent, are called for by the local press. Almost every paper that comes to us from these localities is exulting in the prosperous condition of affairs, and expressing the brightest hopes for the future. These expressions of satisfaction are not confined to one section or direction, but are heard throughout the State. This good news of general prosperity will spread rapidly, and the increase of wealth and population which will follow will be immense. The titles to land have generally become settled, the government separated from the granted lands, and the purchaser can now procure his farm without entaling upon himself a suit at law. This fact, and the proven fertility of the soil and equability of the climate are great attractions, and as these are known people are sure to seek the country for their home.

THE POLITICAL REACTION.—Great as were the Democratic gains and victories of 1867, those of 1868 are still larger. The political reaction against Radicalism, which commenced with the first named year, is still going on with increased momentum. Thus, New Hampshire shows a Democratic gain of 600 on last year. Connecticut doubles her Democratic majority of 1867. Michican, one of the strongest and most intense Radical states in the Union, which was carried by the Republicans last year by a majority of 25,000, now votes down and repudiates the cardinal principle of the party, negro suffrage, by 10,000 majority. A Republican majority of 4,000 in Cincinnati in the spring of 1867 and 2,000 in the fall is almost wiped out in 1868. Dubuque, Iowa, goes Democratic; Atchison, Kansas, likewise. The local elections in Ohio all show large gains over 1867. In short, there is thunder all over the political horizon, and from every direction in it the lightning of public indignation is flashing. These results in every part of the United States show that local feeling and local matters have not produced them. They are too numerous for that. There is another consideration that is worth attention. New Hampshire, which instructs for Grant, goes Republican by a decreased majority. Connecticut instructs for Grant, and a perfect Waterloo defeat to his party immediately follows. In In Ohio and in Iowa, where the Democratic people instruct for Pendleton, the most brilliant victories are won, or the largest gains are made, such as Cincinnati, Dubuque and Columbus. The instructions for Pendleton were the voice of the people; those for Grant were the voice of politicians only.—[N. Y. Day Book.

OCEAN RACE.—An ocean race is reported by the San Francisco papers to have occurred recently. It is not known which ocean beat or who rowed. It is supposed that the sea beat shore.

THE WORLD GROWING COOLER.—The Dramatic Chronicle, treating of the manner in which Radical organs are attempting to make light of the Oregon election, comments as follows:

After all these explanations, it seems pretty clear to us that the influences that have been to work in Oregon and have there secured a Democratic victory, will exert considerable power in most of the States. The bitter feeling in regard to negro suffrage and the prejudice of caste and color have a great deal to do with the reaction. Probably, too, the result of the impeachment trial had some effect. The Democrats were encouraged and the Republicans disheartened by Johnson's acquittal. It is beginning to be evident also, that Grant's personal popularity and his military fame are not going to exert the overwhelming influence that some anticipated. The world seems to be growing cooler and less excitible and enthusiastic than formerly. It appears to us highly probable that no more American Presidents will be elected by the kind of contagious fervor that exerted such an influence in the hard cider and log cabin campaign, and that placed General Jackson and General Taylor in the White House. The whole Nation seemed to be boys then, and the entire people became wildly exhilarated. The next election is not going to be carried with a hurrah, nor is its results to be decided mainly by the personal qualities of the candidates. The platforms will have more influence in determining the issue than the individuals who occupy it.

QUEER CHICKEN.—The Santa Clara Argus is responsible for the following chicken story:

Out at the Seven-mile House, on the Almaden road, there is a well developed rooster which sports a pair of nicely formed horns. The horns shoot from the head immediately above the eyes of the fowl, are each nearly two inches in length, are firmly set, and have the texture and appearance of miniature cow's horns. This country is famous for producing gallinacious freaks—such as headless roosters, double-shelled eggs, and eggs laid by roosters, but this last freak beats them all. The party who owns the "horned rooster" intends to place him on exhibition shortly, when all will have a chance to see this rara avis.

ANOTHER LIFE OF GRANT.—Since the father of Ulysses wrote a history of the exploits of his darling boy, various other authors have entered into competition with the old man, and the country is promised with a flood of biographical sketches of the life of the Radical candidate. The last one announced is written by A. Richardson. These "lives" may serve to amuse the silent General while "recuperating his health" in Colorado and awaiting the political death he is to suffer next November.

SHOVING GRANT.—Greeley says that he, and some others of the Republican leaders "shoved off" Grant as a candidate as long as they could. But finding that the people were "a unit," the politicians had to give in. Now, Horace and his fellow recusants have taken to shoving Grant on with even greater zeal than they employed in attempting to shove him off.—[Dramatic Chronicle.

Yes, and on November next "the people" will be very apt to "shove him up" Salt River.

ARRESTED.—We learn through private sources, that the parties who robbed a mill in Owyhe of a large lot of amalgam lately, were arrested, and about $14,000 worth of amalgam found in possession of parties arrested. One of the supposed robbers was shot in the leg, when arrested. They are said to be employes of the company they robbed.—[Idaho Statesman, June 11th.

LARGE NUGGET.—At the Chipstine claim in Nevada county, a lump of gold was found recently which weighed 240 pounds, and is valued at $20,000. This is supposed to be the largest lump of the precious metal ever discovered.

SMALL-POX.—That terrible disease, the small-pox, has made its appearance on the plains, four miles east of Suisun City. So far, there have been four cases, but our physicians hope to confine the disease to its present locality, and there is every prospect that they will be successful.—[Solano Press.

FENIAN RAID.—Canada is represented by recent telegrams to be in a turmoil from apprehensions of a raid by Fenians, who are said to have concentrated large forces at different points preparatory to a grand struggle.

CONVENTION OF BLACKS.—A convention of "Colored Republicans" is to be held in Baltimore on the fourth of August for the purpose of agitating the doctrine of negro equality.

ANNUAL REPORT.—We have received the thirteenth Annual Report of the Odd Fellows' Library Association, containing valuable statistics pertaining to the Order on this coast.

NEW JERSEY.—Generals Steedman, Gordon Granger, T. W. Egan and Smith have been visiting the principal cities in New Jersey on a mission to encourage a feeling in favor of General Hancock as a Democratic candidate for the Presidency.

LAKEPORT TRAGEDY.—We have received a communication from G. W. Hinckley who shot and killed S. Chapman, at Lakeport, on the 26th ult. Hinckley says the newspaper accounts of the affair misrepresent the truth and do him a great injustice. He says he did not leave his wife, nor did he point a pistol at her, as reported. The following on the subject, is from the Sacramento Union of the 8th instant:

We understand from Hinckley that the wife was denied the custody of the children by the District Court unless she would come back and live with the husband. Chapman at the time knew of the decree of the Court, and had a copy of it in his possession. Hinckley says that he entertained no malice toward Chapman, and that he had just returned from San Francisco, where he went in pursuit of one Chas. Goodwin, whom he charges to be a deceiver, and the cause of all his domestic unhappiness.

COMPLIMENTARY.—A ball was given at Platt's Hall, San Francisco, on Monday last in honor of the birth of triplet sons to the wife of H. Danziger. Think of that ye wretched devotees of single blessedness, and call at once on the Justice that you may be crowned with the joys of matrimony.

TOWN AND COUNTY MATTERS.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—At the time of going to press last week, the Board had not adjourned. The following is the remainder of their doings: "In the matter of roads and bridges in East Cache Creek District—Now comes J. W. Tilly, Road Master of the above District, and represents that many of the bridges crossing water ditches in the district are in bad condition and need immediate attention. It is therefore ordered that the said Tilly immediately notify the owners of said water ditches to put said bridges in good repair, and if this is not immediately done, to the approval of said Road Master, and bridges made of such width and strength as he may approve, then the said Road Master shall proceed to fill up, with earth, so much of said ditch, in all of said roads, as will make a sufficient wagon-way, and at the same time commence suit against any of said ditch-owners who fail to remedy said obstructions in said roads by the building of said bridges, or keeping the same in repair; and it is understood that this order relates to all the roads used, and known, and worked on as public roads, prior to the cutting of said ditches." Report of County Treasurer and County Auditor received, placed on record, and ordered published in the YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT. RAILROAD MATTERS.—The citizens of Woodland and vicinity seem to have earnestly resolved upon having a railroad. The enterprise evinced by prominent men in this undertaking, has placed the matter in a favorable light, and made the prospect a subject of congratulation. The plan by which this public benefit is to be secured is feasible, and we doubt not will be successful. At a meeting of citizens held on the 30th ult., Messrs. Giddings, Freeman and Hollingsworth were appointed a committe to confer with the officers of the California Pacific Railroad Company to ascertain their intentions as to the extension of their road from Putah Creek to Woodland, and also for the purpose of receiving from said Company any proposition which they might make looking toward the accomplishment of such a purpose. The committee, we learn, had a conference with the parties interested, at Davisville, on the 18th inst. Their report will be laid before a meeting of our citizens, at Heath's Hall, on Monday evening next. We are informed by one of the committee that the Company propose to extend their road to this town by the first of next December, provided the citizens of the county, interested, will raise $50,000 for the use of the Company, by purchasing bonds, subscribing for stock, or by donation; and, provided further, if the citizens agree to assist the Company by donation, the sum of $25,000 will be accepted as a sufficient amount to secure the completion of the work. Other important items will appear in the report, to which it is not necessary to refer at present. It is hoped that all who feel an interest in this matter will be present at the meeting on Monday evening.

TOUCHING APPEAL.—A few days ago a forlorn stranger, scorning the mere juice of the grape, repeated his potations of liquid fire until money and consciousness had vanished, and then staggered supperless to bed on the lap of Mother Earth, where he remained until next morning, when, awaking with a thirst like a burning furnace, he found his way to a saloon where he begged and implored in vain for something to quench his ungovernable thirst. Leaving the saloon in despair, he entered a hotel on Main street, and, turning to the proprietor with woebegone countenance and tearful eyes, made the following touching appeal: "Landlord, would you give a drink this morning to a poor impecunious fellow who is destitute of a family?" The landlord acknowledged that the appeal was as irresistible as original, but declined on the ground that he kept a temperance house. The destitution of that fellow is a blessing to his unborn posterity.

WOODLAND DEMOCRATIC CLUB.—The regular meeting of this Club, on Saturday evening last, was well attended. The Club was addressed by L. B. Goodwin, Esq., of Solano, who made a telling speech in favor of extending the same privileges of self-government that we enjoy, to the people of the South, who had long since laid down their arms in good faith but who were yet groaning under the iron heel of Radical despotism. He handled the subject with ability, and was frequently applauded in the course of his remarks. The Club is increasing in membership and continues to prosper.

FOURTH OF JULY.—The General Committee of Arrangements and the several Sub Committees will meet to-day at 2 P. M., for the purpose of further consultation in regard to necessary preparations for an appropriate celebration of the Fourth of July. A grand Democratic Barbecue is to be given, an oration to be delivered, the Declaration of Independence to be read, etc.

VALUABLE INVENTION.—We saw yesterday an improvement attached to the steam threshing machine of B. & B. F. Jackson, which we believe will be hailed with satisfaction by the farming community, and recognized by every observer as one of the most useful inventions. This improvement is the invention of the Jackson brothers, and consists of draper attachments to the machinery of the thresher for the purpose of carrying the grain to the apron in front of the cylinder. These drapers may be elevated or depressed, or be made to conform in any manner desirable to the relative position of the separator and grain stacks, and work admirably—requiring scarcely a perceptible increase of power, and less than half the number of men usually necessary to supply the feeder with grain from the stack, besides rendering the work of those who use the fork more convenient and easy. A patent has been applied for.

COMPLAINT.—The Santa Cruz Times finds fault with the clerk of the weather, and pronounces this one of the most disagreeable Springs ever experienced on this coast since its settlement by the whites. Don't complain, neighbor. If you or your readers desire a change of climate we advise you to emigrate to Yolo. Here, although the Spring has been cooler than usual, it has been peculiarly adapted for the production of a bountiful crop, and "glorious summer" is binding the farmer's brow with "victorious wreaths." No murmers of despondency are heard amid the smiles of peace and plenty.

OMITTED.—The name of J. T. Lillard was inadvertently omitted in the published list of the Fourth of July committees last week. Mr. Lillard is one of the committee appointed for Plainfield precinct.

RAILROAD MEETING.—A meeting of citizens who feel an interest in the construction of a railroad from Woodland to Putah creek, will be held at Heath's Hall on Monday evening, the 22d inst.

HOMEWARD BOUND.—I. A. Cory, employed for the past six months as compositor on the DEMOCRAT, left us yesterday with the intention of returning to his family in Sac City, Iowa.

COUNTY TREASURER'S REPORT.—The Quarterly Report of the County Treasurer, for the quarter ending May 30th, will be found in another column.

LECTURE.—A lecture will be delivered in the court room on Saturday evening the 27th inst., by Hon. F. L. B. Goodwin. Subject: The Condition of the South.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.—Thos. J. Adams will sell some valuable town property, at auction, on Saturday next. See advertisement.

NO DISORDER.—The town during the week has been unusually quiet, no arrests have been made and the jail is without an occupant.

BEATS ALL.—E. Giddings brought to this office the other day a bunch of oats measuring nine feet and two inches in length!

HITCH YOUR HORSES.—Several runaways occurred in this vicinity this week—result of carelessness in leaving teams unhitched.

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. This valuable preparation containing in a highly concentrated form all the properties of the Jamaica Ginger, has become one of the most popular domestic remedies for all diseases of the stomach and digestive organs.

As a tonic it will be found invaluable to all persons recovering from debility, whether produced by fever or otherwise, for whilst it imparts to the system all the glow and vigor that can be produced by wine or brandy, it is entirely free from the reactionary effects that follow the use of spirits of any kind.

It is also an excellent remedy for females who suffer from difficult mensturation, giving almost immediate relief to the spasm that so frequently accompany that period.

It gives immediate relief to Nausea, caused by riding in a railroad car, or by sea-sickness, or other causes.

It is also valuable as an external application for Gout, Neuralgia, etc.

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

Scorn not Little Things.

Scorn not the slightest word or deed.
Nor deem it void of power;
There's fruit in each wind-wafted seed,
Waiting his natal hour.

A whispering word may touch the heart,
And call it back to life;
A look of love bid sin depart,
And still unholy strife.

No act falls fruitless, none can tell
How vast this power may be,
Nor what results unfolded dwell
Within it silently.

Work and despair not; give thy mite,
Nor care how small it be;
God is with all that serve thee right,
The holy, true and free.

APING THE MOTHER.—A little girl, not six years of age, screamed out to her little brother, who was playing in the mud:

"Bob, you good for nothing rascal, come right into the house this minute, or I'll beat you till the skin comes off."

"Why, Angelina dear, what do you mean? Where did you learn such talk?" exclaimed the horrified mother, who stood talking with a friend.

Angelina's childish reply was a good commentary upon this manner of speaking to children:

"Why, mother, you see we are playing, and he's my little boy, and I'm scolding just as you did me this morning; that's all!"

LORENZO DOW, the celebrated itinerant preacher, once came across a man who was deeply lamenting that his ax had been stolen. Dow told the man if he would come to meeting with him he would find his ax. At the meeting, Dow had on the pulpit, in plain sight, a large stone. Suddenly in the middle of his sermon he stopped, took up the stone, and said: "An ax was stolen in this neighborhood last night, and if the man who took it don't dodge, I will hit him on the forehead with this stone;" and at the same time making a violent effort to throw it. A person present dodged his head, and forthwith acknowledged the theft.
